Key challenge:

To supply security fencing and gates to accommodate a range of site levels including non-standard raked, radius panels and bespoke gates through a car park undergoing redevelopment.

Products featured:

- Barbican - Vertical bar fencing with concealed fixings
- Sentry - Vertical bar fencing with round pale with two semi pale through rail design

Project:

Situated in the centre of Bedford is one of the town's busiest multi-storey car parks. Constructed in the 1960s the Allhallow car park, cited for demolition underwent a multi-million pound refurbishment as part of the "Gateway regeneration project" with the aim to restore and improve the facility making it both fit for purpose and suited to the needs of today's shoppers.

Solution:

The redeveloped facility now includes shops on the ground floor and solar panels on the roof. Our remit was to prevent access and malicious damage during times when the facility was closed, whilst also protecting the newly refurbished ground floor shops and state-of-the-art solar panels.

We designed, manufactured and installed both our Barbican and Sentry steel vertical bar fencing systems. Matching gates were designed and installed to all areas and levels of the car park with special attention given to securing the stairways which was achieved by gating off the pedestrian walkways and landings. Bespoke fan panels were also installed above the entrance to prevent any attempt to cross the exterior walls of the parking area.

Reflecting on the successful completion of the project, a council spokesperson stated, "The sheer wealth of experience Jacksons brought throughout the project from design to installation ensured our key objectives were met with complete professionalism."

The overall project saw The Allhallows car park in Bedford winning the 'Best Car Park Refurbishment Award' in the 2015 British Parking Awards.
